“To become the mother of the Savior, Mary ‘was enriched by God with gifts appropriate to such a role.’ The angel Gabriel at the moment of the annunciation salutes her as ‘full of grace.’ In fact, in order for Mary to be able to give the free assent of her faith to the announcement of her vocation, it was necessary that she be wholly borne by God’s grace” (CCC, 490)

ABOUT TODAY'S MUSIC

Today we celebrate the beautiful Mass of the Solemnity of the Immaculate Conception. Today's music mostly sets today's proper antiphons. At both Masses, we hear the beautiful introit which associates the prophecy of Isaiah with Mary, the Mother of God. Her joy should be a model for us this day. Our offertory hymn quotes Our Lady's response to the angel Gabriel at the Annunciation: "My soul gives glory to you, Lord..." The communion antiphon at all Masses is a brief quotation from the psalms. The given translation is that as it occurs in the Graduale Romanum, showing the scriptural reference: the "missal antiphon" (given in Sunday's Word) is slightly amended, removing the immediacy of the scriptural root of the antiphon. We are able to benefit from two "fruits of the chant repertoire" here at the cathedral: the Gregorian antiphon (such as the 6:30pm offertory), which encourages contemplation as well as a realization that these chants were heard a millennium ago in this same Mass, and the newer English antiphons, which help lead us to an appreciation of the Gregorian original. The Cathedral Choir's motet after communion in honor of the Blessed Virgin is Duruflé's setting of the 4th Century Marian antiphon Tota pulchra est. As is usually the case with Duruflé's choral writing, the motet directly quotes the chant melody, but with great embellishment. This particular setting is for multi-part ladies' voices, providing a tie-in with the feminine subject of the text. The ladies of the choir also present the Kyrie from a lovely Rheinberger Mass for women's voices. Selections from Johann Pachelbel's Magnificat fugues follow Mass. These small settings are "intonations", or introductions, for the singing of the Magnificat at Vespers. When one would celebrate Sung Vespers, this helped the singers "get the pitch" and also beautify the liturgy. Known best for his Canon in D, Pachelbel has a large output of high-quality keyboard music such as this.
