VOLUNTARY FOR DOUBLE ORGAN

HENRY PURCELL

ABOUT TODAY'S MUSIC

Today's music is a survey of English music, especially that of the Renaissance and Baroque periods. Ever unique, England was one of the most Catholic countries in Europe prior to the English reformation. Ironically, much of the Catholic music performed in England was written at a time when Catholicism had been pushed aside. This was already the case for Tallis' O sacrum convivium (sung two weeks ago) and is certainly the case for the two works by William Byrd that we sing today. Byrd's three Masses were written mostly likely for the recusant Catholic community which was still served (in secrecy) by Jesuit missionaries and others. Mass was often celebrated in manor houses of the wealthy; Byrd moved his family to Exeter in mid-life to be closer to the Petre family's manor homes. Prior to this, Byrd (along with his mentor Tallis and many other luminaries of the English music world) honed his craft in the Chapel Royal; the skills he learned there achieve full flowering in his Mass settings. The Mass for Three Voices is a miraculous work; one often has the sense when singing it that "this shouldn't sound this good!" Byrd successfully masks the modest resources used with his inimitable talent. The Kyrie and Gloria even have an interesting shape: the Kyrie is extremely simple and basically homophonic. The Gloria begins (over) similarly, but after the repeated petitions of the beginning text, breaks into stunning polyphony. Byrd always reserves some of his most intimate writing for the Agnus Dei; unlike the four- and five-voice Masses, this movement eschews turbulent uncertainty for an especially restful sense of repose as if saying, "And all will be well, all manner of things shall be well" in the words of Julian of Norwich (quoted by the late Pope Benedict XVI, among many others). Byrd's O sacrum convivium is modest and concludes with a dance-like Alleluia. Voluntaries today are presented both in name and in style: Stanley's pieces are late Baroque (he is roughly 30 years younger than Bach) and border on the style gallant; that said, they are of great character, and show off the modest resources of the 18th-Century English organ with great aplomb. Blind, Stanley was known mostly for his excellent organ compositions and talent as a player. Purcell stands as one of the greats of Baroque music; his death in his 30's is tragic for many reasons, not least of which is to see where this bridge from the middle to late Baroque would've gone as a composer. His organ repertoire is extraordinarily small (despite his positions as organist at Westminster Abbey and the Chapel Royal); this voluntary for double (two manual) organ is a showpiece with an extreme amount of ornamentation, eventually giving way to a rollicking alla breve finale.

MUSIC REMINDERS

- The 2025-2026 Downtown Concert Series is finalized and can be found at <https://stpaulsbhm.org/concerts>. Bookmark this, please! Did you know that (according to documents from the Holy See) concerts in a consecrated space may not be ticketed? Choral concerts range from $4,000-$15,000 and will bring Samford University A Cappella Choir, Byrd Ensemble, and The Aeolians to the Cathedral. Organ concerts are toward the lower end of that range. No amount is too small, and if one does not wish to underwrite an entire concert, we can arrange a cosponsorship. This will be an exciting season with many Cathedral "firsts". Follow www.stpaulsbhm.org/concerts and the Cathedral's social media for more details; contact Ludwick@stpaulsbhm.org for more information on sponsorship!
- Have you considered joining Cathedral Choir? Our flagship ensemble, which sings for 11am Mass and holy days, resumes rehearsal August 27. We are always in need of new members for this fun, hard working group. You will make friendships that will last a lifetime! Please contact the Director of Music for more information!
- Cathedral Children's Schola Cantorum resumed on August 20. If you have a child in grades 3-8, you should consider this fun, high-achieving group! Members sing for Mass 5-6 times a year, will participate in a concert (new for this year!), and learn basic musicianship, healthy singing, solfège, and music literacy along the way. A nominal fee applies which benefits the parish; please contact Ludwick@stpaulsbhm.org for more information! We could particularly use a few singers GR 6-8 to mentor our (excellent) younger scholars!
