All others, including our non-Catholic guests, may remain in their pews and join us in prayer. Alternatively, to participate in the communion procession and receive a blessing, come forward in the line and cross your arms over your chest as you approach the minister. Thank you.

“GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD” FROM THE CRUCIFIXION

JOHN STAINER

God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that who so believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved.

—John 3:16-17

THIS IS OUR CORPORATE ACT OF THANKSGIVING AFTER MASS. THANK YOU!

ABOUT TODAY'S MUSIC

Today, the “green” cycle of Ordinary Time Sundays gives way to the Feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross. As one might imagine, this feast relates to others in the liturgical year that emphasize the Holy Cross, not only in the Crucifixion, but also in the final meaning of the Cross as an instrument of salvation. Belonging now to the second rank of feasts (Solemnities being the highest), this feast nonetheless is liturgically very important and ancient. In fact, it predates the liturgies of Holy Week, and supplies a number of the liturgical proper antiphons for Holy Thursday and Good Friday, including the introit Nos autem (Holy Thursday) and gradual Christus factus est (Good Friday, and Holy Thursday in the Extraordinary Form). Gregorian chant is the one repertoire we can all claim as Catholics (cf. Sacrosanctum Concilium, #116). In the words of Pope St. Paul VI, chant helps “...make it easier for Christians to achieve unity and spiritual harmony with their brothers and with the living tradition of the past.” (Voluntati Obsequens) However, today’s celebration is also accented by the joyous Messe Solennelle of Louis Vierne. It is widely considered the best and most important of the Masses for organ and choir from the so-called “French Romantic” school. Composed in 1899, it is a product of the traditional arrangement of large French churches. Unlike the US, where Catholic choirs are traditionally in the loft or gallery with the pipe organ, French churches are often arranged to facilitate the singing of the daily Mass and office. Therefore, the choir (whether of mixed singers or clerics) sits in the liturgical choir (or sanctuary) of the church. An orgue de chœur accompanies services and reinforces vocal parts, while the church’s main organ, the grand orgue, resides in the loft. This presents the possibility of dialogues between both the choir organ and grand orgue, which Vierne uses to great effect. Of course here we must simulate two organs, so the listener hears the orgue de chœur part on the Positive division of the Cathedral’s organ. The Gloria has an infectious enthusiasm and great rhythmic drive. A contrasting middle section sees thematic material presented mostly by the grand orgue, whereas in the rest of the movement the large organ serves as “punctuation” at important moments. The Agnus Dei has lovely lyric writing that moves through a variety of keys and textures. The text “dona nobis pacem/grant us peace” is set with particular delicacy as a reminder of the fervent prayer of the People of God before every holy communion that the world may know its peace in Christ Jesus. The postcommunion at 11am is John Stainer’s most famous piece. “God so loved the world” stands as one of the greatest expressions in English of the comforting words of John 3:16-17. It is relatively straightforward, but depends on the choir maintaining perfect coordination and tuning to get the message across. It is the favorite choral piece of our beloved late Bishop Foley—perhaps you might consider saying a prayer for him while listening (as he so often asked us to do!)

MUSIC REMINDERS

- The 2025-2026 Downtown Concert Series is finalized and can be found at <https://stpaulsbhm.org/concerts>. Bookmark this, please! Did you know that (according to documents from the Holy See) concerts in a consecrated space may not be ticketed? Choral concerts range from $4,000-$15,000 and will bring Samford University A Cappella Choir, Byrd Ensemble, and The Aeolians to the Cathedral. Organ concerts are toward the lower end of that range. No amount is too small, and if one does not wish to underwrite an entire concert, we can arrange a cosponsorship. Follow www.stpaulsbhm.org/concerts and the Cathedral’s social media for more details; contact Ludwick@stpaulsbhm.org for more information on sponsorship!
